

9 July, 2021

Extel Aligns With The Australian Missile Corporation (AMC).

The Australian Missile Corporation is a subsidiary of NIOA, formed to facilitate collaboration between industry partners, academia, State Governments and Defence in response to the Australian Government's call to establish a sovereign guided weapons enterprise.

Today, we announce our official collaboration with the AMC in order to support the Sovereign Guided Weapons Enterprise and help secure Australia's sovereign defence capabilities.

Extel has been a leading provider of complex electronics design and manufacturing services to Defence primes in Australia and overseas for more than 30 years. Our design and manufacturing of mission-critical products come with a specialist focus on high complexity, high compliance and high reliability. Fully accredited, and with unique expertise in specialist electronic design and engineering, we ensure our clients' products are designed and built to perform, even in the most challenging environments.

Our CEO, Bruce Fitzgerald, said "we are thrilled to collaborate on this national endeavour, further adding to a proven track record of complex design work in Defence and extending the Sovereign capability on-shore."

For more information on our defence capability, please click here.

For more information on how we can support you, please contact:

Jeff.thomas@exteltechnologies.com - Chief Business Officer

Michael.haines@exteltechnologies.com - National Sales Manager

Russell.oakes@exteltechnologies.com - Business Development Manager

Info@exteltechnologies.com - General Enquiries